5.1.3 CAPACITY BUILDING AND SKILLS ENHANCEMENT

2. LANGUAGE AND COMMUNICATION SKILLS

Language and communication skills refer to the proficiency and aptitude an individual possesses in effectively conveying messages, ideas, emotions, and information to others through verbal, non-verbal, and written means. These skills are vital for successful interaction, collaboration, and understanding in personal, social, educational, and professional settings. They encompass various aspects such as verbal fluency, listening comprehension, non-verbal cues interpretation, empathy, clarity in expression, cultural sensitivity, adaptability to different communication styles and contexts, as well as the ability to negotiate, persuade, and resolve conflicts. Strong language and communication skills enable individuals to build positive relationships, convey their thoughts and intentions clearly, navigate diverse cultural environments, and achieve mutual understanding and cooperation with others.
